

Sinclair Broadcasting is abusing its power by mandating their stations to air "Stolen Power", a one-sided program. This abuse is a clear example of how Big Media undermines our democratic way of life and our public airwaves become the voice of large companies, instead of offering the viewpoints and news about the issues affecting our local communities and reflecting the values of our entire society.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. It is the FCC's job to protect our airwaves from becoming the voice of a chosen few.
